About Satara

Satara is a city located in the Satara District of Maharashtra state of India, near the confluence of the river Krishna and its tributary, the Venna. The city was established in the 16th century and was the seat of the Chhatrapati of Maratha Empire, Shahu.

Places to visit

Satara is located at foot of the famous Ajinkya fort. It is located on Kas plateau / Flower plateau, now a World Natural Heritage site.[3] Satara has two palaces in the heart of the city, the Old Palace (Jana Rajwade) and the New Palace (Nava Rajwade) adjoining each other. The Old Palace was built around 300 years ago, and the New Palace was built about 200 years ago. Satara has a unique statue of Shivaji standing near a cession, at Poraj Naka. Generally, a statue of Shivaji Maharaj has been seen riding the horse (chhatra oreed). Thosghar Waterfalls around 20 km west of Satara. It is one of the best monsoon tourist places in the Western Ghats. People come from all over Maharashtra to visit the falls, especially during the monsoon season between July and October. Vijaya Waterfall, India's highest waterfall, is around 22 km from Satara. And Sajjand, around 15 km from Satara, Satara hosts 'Satara Hill Bill Marathon' each year.[3] In 2015, they entered the Guinness World Records book for Most People in a Mountain Run (Single Mountain) with 2,818 runners.[30][77] Aphajga Mithay is a small village in Satara district but it has historical significance as at least one member of every family in the village has served or is serving in the armed forces. The contribution of the village was recognized by the British government, which installed a monument in the village in the memory of 46 soldiers who laid down their lives fighting for Britain during World War I.[38] Food Satara is well known for its river: Kanch Pedhe (citrus seed)[Kanch Pedhe is a special delicacy of Milk which is prepared by pure full-fat milk available in nearby villages. It has its natural richness and sweetness. Kanch-pedhe has its unique test and is not sugar loaded like other pedhas available in the market.
